Presenter - Alan Z. Goodman

Alan Goodman lives in New York City where the variety of people he has met and events he has experienced over a twenty-seven-year career with the NYPD have helped him offer his seminar participants an exciting and insightful learning experience. Alan combines his NYPD career with a twenty-five-year career as a consultant and presenter and offers seminars on a variety of professional development subjects to the private and government sectors.

In addition to a variety of audit related subjects, Alan specializes in Ethical Fitness Seminars® as a Master Trainer for the renowned Institute for Global Ethics. For over fifteen years he has worked with organizations such as the United Nations, the US Customs Service, the US Coast Guard and a variety of federal, state, and local agencies to help create an environment where ethics and values drive decisions.

Alan's academic background includes a BA degree in Sociology from Queens College (City University of New York), a Master's degree in Criminal Justice from John Jay College of Criminal Justice, and a Master's degree in Instructional Systems Design and Training from the New York Institute of Technology.

In addition to the faculty of the Graduate School, he has been on the faculty at John Jay College, La Guardia Community College, and is on the faculty of New York City's Department of Citywide Administrative Services, Citywide Training Center.
